Which visa fits you?

Indonesia has several long-stay visas that need no Indonesian sponsor. The two most people compare are below.

	Second Home (E33)	Remote worker (E33G)
Stay	Up to 5 years	1 year, can be extended
Money	US$130,000 in a state bank, or a US$1M apartment, within 90 days of the ITAS	Income of at least US$60,000 a year
Also needs	Commitment statement	Employment contract with a company outside Indonesia
Gov. fees	IDR 13,000,000	IDR 7,000,000

Both also ask for a passport valid 6+ months, a recent photo and a bank statement for the last 3 months showing at least US$2,000. Fees and requirements as listed by the Soekarno-Hatta immigration office in October 2026.

Other routes

- Retirement visa for people aged 60 or over.
- Golden Visa for large investments, with 5 or 10-year permits.
- Family visas if your spouse is Indonesian.

> ### Changed since the 2022 launch
>
> When the Second Home visa launched, permits of 5 or 10 years and a deposit of IDR 2 billion were announced. Under the current regulation (Permenkumham 22/2023) the permit is up to 5 years and the funds are set at US$130,000. Older guides, including ours, still showed the 2022 rules.

Rules and costs

What the visa allows

- Living in Indonesia, and activities related to business and investment.
- Tourism and visiting family or friends.
- Leaving and re-entering as often as you like while your re-entry permit is valid.

What it doesn't

- Work that doesn't match your stay permit, or selling goods or services. Working for an Indonesian employer needs separate permission.
- Staying past your permit's end date.

Government fees
